The graying of America has provided a gold-making opportunity to some, according to Diamond (Sociology/California State Univ.), who says that caretaking is a nationally subsidized business in which governments dispense enormous sums of Social Security, Medicare, and Medicaid moneys to corporations that pay workers sub- poverty-level wages and dehumanize patients into units called ``beds."

MAKING GRAY GOLD | Kirkus Reviews

"Making Grey Gold" is a wonderful example of Institutional Ethnography and the manner in which the managerial efficiency of the nursing care industry overrides and erases the senior residents' realities, replacing them with processes and criteria that are capable of being evaluated with "scientific efficiency".

Details about Making Gray Gold: This first hand report on the work of nurses and other caregivers in a nursing home is set powerfully in the context of wider political, economic, and cultural forces that shape and constrain the quality of care for America's elderly. Diamond demonstrates in a compelling way the price that business-as-usual policies extract from the elderly as well as those whose work it is to care for them.
